Elizabeth A. Skomp is an associate professor and chair of the Russian Department at Sewanee: The University of the South, and director of its Interdisciplinary Humanities Program.

Benjamin M. Sutcliffe is an associate professor of Russian and faculty associate of the Havighurst Center for Russian and Post-Soviet Studies, both at Miami University of Ohio.

Novelist Ludmila Ulitskaya is a crucial cultural figure in contemporary Russia, garnering both literary awards and best-seller status. Engaging with the past to combat the creeping authoritarianism of the Putin era, she has become the latest in a long line of Russian dissident authors championing the values of liberalism and tolerance while critiquing the state.

Options for Teaching

Teaching the Latin American Boom

Edited by LUCILLE KERR and
ALEJANDRO HERRERO-OLAIZOLA

"The attention to the framing of the Boom makes this volume more than just a study of the Boom; it stretches to cover a great deal of territory, literarily speaking, of twentieth- and twenty-first-century literature. This is a very important addition to the series."

—Gwen Kirkpatrick
Georgetown University

In the decade from the early 1960s to the early 1970s, Latin American authors found themselves writing for a new audience in both Latin America and Spain and in an ideologically charged climate as the Cold War found another focus in the Cuban Revolution.

This volume provides a wide range of options for teaching the complexities of the Boom, explores its influence, proposes ways to approach it in the classroom, and provides resources for selecting materials for courses.

My Father's Books

Translated by Christina E. Kramer
paper $24.95 ebook $16.95

“My Father's Books, with its hypnotic repetitions and its varied meditations on one and the same theme, is like an extended prose poem, an elegy in the form of a novel. Beautifully translated, it is a book to be savored.”

—Madeline G. Levine, translator of Milosz's ABC's

The Time of the Goats

Translated by Christina E. Kramer
paper $24.95 ebook $16.95

“An appealing and compelling read. The wry, thoughtful voice of the narrator talks about tragic and complicated political events in ways that make them instantly understandable in all their complexity.”

—Ellen Elias-Bursac, winner of the 2006 National Translation Award
